

Chammas & Marcheteau advises Ed.ai on its €5 million fundraising (Artificial Intelligence/Education)

Chammas & Marcheteau advised Ed.ai on its €5 million seed fundraising from Bpifrance, La Poste Ventures and 50 Partners. Existing investors AFI Ventures, CentraleSupélec Venture, Ring Capital and Super Capital also participated in this new funding round.

Founded in 2024 by Jonathan Banon, ex co-founder of Lelivrescolaire.fr, Lyon-based start-up Ed.ai develops an artificial intelligence assistant for teachers, offering pre-marking of students' work, identifying individual and collective learning gaps, and generating personalised remediation programmes. Already deployed in secondary education in France and now in the United States, the solution aims to enhance teachers' ability to provide tailored educational support.

This fundraising will enable Ed.ai to accelerate its development in Europe and the United States, double its workforce and expand its offering to higher education. The company also intends to measure the educational impact of its solution on student progress and teacher well-being.

The Chammas & Marcheteau team consisted of Denis Marcheteau (partner), Arys Serdjanian and Nessrine Berrad (associates) on corporate aspects, and Aude Spinasse (partner) and Constance Parini (associate) on intellectual property aspects.
